NEW QUESTION: 2

You have a Lync Server 2013 infrastructure. Your network contains a single site. The site contains a Standard Edition server and multiple network segments. Each segment is associated to a different subnet. Some of the network segments are wireless and some are wired. You enable Enterprise voice and deploy a Lync Server 2013 media gateway. You configure media bypass. You set media bypass to Always bypass. Call Admission Control (CAC) is disabled. Users on the wireless network report poor audio quality during calls to external phone numbers. The users report good audio quality during calls to other Lync Server 2013 users. You need to recommend changes to the infrastructure to improve the audio quality of calls for the wireless network users. Which three actions should you recommend? (Each correct answer presents part of the solution.)

- A. From the Microsoft Lync Server 2013 Control Panel, select Enable call admission control.
