NEW QUESTION: 1

If the level of confidence is lowered from 95% to 90%, but the allowable error and the standard deviation remain the same, what happens to the required sample size?

A. Increases

- B. Remain unchanged
- C. None of these answers
- D. Decreases

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

This is related to the degree or confidence and the maximum error allowed. If you want to have a lower degree of confidence, you can have a smaller sample size (given that the standard deviation is constant). If you want 100% confidence, you want to use the whole population as your sample.

NEW QUESTION: 2

Scenario 3:

After resolving numerous connectivity issues throughout the various branch sites, connectivity between applications and users is finally present. The network administrator is informed that during certain tests, applications are not performing as they are expected to. Users report that call quality has not fully improved and that some of their calls either drop or have poor voice quality where the conversation is breaking up. Other users are noticing that file transfers are slower than expect. A group of users from a few sites have reported slowness in accessing internal and external applications.

Exhibit.

A network administrator is receiving complaints that a real-time voice application is not performing well, with choppy audio, and dead audio especially during peak traffic times. What two actions can the administrator take to diagnose and fix the issue? (Choose two.)

- A. Configure a QoS policy to load balance the realtime traffic across all links.
- B. Configure a QoS policy to rate limit all traffic during peak times.
- C. Check the status of the links using the QoE and Transport tabs for any degraded underlay issues or congestion issues.
- D. Ensure that the realtime application is matching the correct application type using the diagnostics page.
